1. POLICY AND PRACTICE

Additional £1m Community Funding announced for initiatives to tackle knife crime – 7th March 2018

Home Office announces new round of funding to help communities working with young people to prevent them from being drawn into knife crime. Over 40 charities have already benefited from grants of up to £20,000 as part of the first round of funding which was launched in October 2017. In addition, further funding has been secured for Young People's Advocates until at least the end of March 2019, to provide support for vulnerable women and girls at risk of exploitation by gangs. A new Serious Violence Strategy will be published in the spring.

Transforming the response to domestic abuse – 8th March 2018

Government sets out proposals for further action to tackle and prevent domestic abuse – some of which will be set-out in the Queen's speech and taken forward via the draft Domestic Abuse Bill. This includes proposals to:-

- Promote awareness by introducing a new statutory definition of domestic abuse which includes economic abuse, help all schools deliver high-quality Relationships and Sex Education (RSE) and Personal, Social, Health and Economic (PSHE) Education and further improve identification, understanding and response to domestic abuse among statutory agencies and professionals
- Protect and support victims by creating a new Domestic Abuse Protection Order to help prevent escalation of abuse, put the Domestic Violence Disclosure Scheme into law to drive greater national consistency, encouraging multi-agency working to deliver holistic support to victims, exploring how victims who face specific barriers can be better supported and technology can be better used to enhance the safety of victims
- Pursue and deter perpetrators by ensuring that sentencing recognises the devastating impact of domestic abuse on victims and children involved, explore whether the wider use of conditional cautions would be appropriate in some circumstances, consider whether the coercive or controlling offence is working effectively and what more can be done to tackle perpetrator behaviour and improve offender management
- Improve performance, particularly in reducing regional variations in recording, criminal justice outcomes and victim support, improving data collection, quality and linkage, improving understanding of what works, exploring how learning from domestic homicide reviews can be best applied and providing the domestic abuse commissioner with a key role in overseeing and monitoring provision and domestic abuse services.

The government is also making £8m available to support the recovery of children who witness domestic abuse, making £2m available to support female offenders who have been victims, consulting on how some of the £20m dedicated domestic abuse funding should be allocated and seeking more general feedback from victims, support organisations, research experts and professionals on how domestic abuse can be best tackled.

2. RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT AND STATISTICS

Frontline online. Smarter blue light services – 13th March 2018

Reform paper considers how smart technology can help to deliver more effective and collaborative emergency services and be used by first responders to assess situations en route to incidents. Getting the most from this technology demands better handling of data, particularly as data quantities across emergency services continue to expand. Better collaboration over sharing data is essential and risks should be overcome through using access keys that only allow emergency services to see permission data. Cloud-based storage, used throughout the private sector and in the future, technology such as blockchain could further enhance security and accountability. Paper is sponsored by Motorola Solutions. Survival and Beyond: the domestic abuse report – 7th March 2018

Women's Aid report includes statistics on support provided to survivors of domestic abuse across their network and findings from the Women's Aid Annual Survey 2017. In 2016/17, refuge workers provided places of safety for an estimated 13,414 women and 14,353 children fleeing domestic abuse. An estimated 154,306 survivors were also supported in community-based support services. 60% of responding services cited funding cuts and uncertainties as their biggest challenge in 2016/17 and over one in ten of responding services reported that they had experienced a decrease in staffing levels during the year. There was also a 13% decrease in the number of organisations who were able to provide counselling as part of their support provision.

3. AUDITS AND INSPECTIONS

The operation of Individual Quality Assessments in the CPS – 13th March 2018

HMCPSP thematic inspection of Individual Quality Assessments (IQA) which were rolled out in 2015 to assess compliance with quality standards for casework and advocacy by individual prosecutors. While there has been a clear improvement on the previous quality assurance regime, inspectors found a lack of robustness and misunderstanding about the IQA requirements, which are hampering efforts to deliver improvements. Inspectors found that 12.1% of the IQAs showed an overly lenient rating, while the CPS overall judged the quality of its casework to be 14.3% better than the inspectors' assessment. IQA is also not helping as much as it could to raise standards with regard to disclosure, despite this being the most significant casework issue facing the CPS and police at present. The report recommends the development of a national training package and that the CPS includes a separate set of disclosure questions when developing the revised IQA app and guidance.

4. REVIEWS AND INQUIRIES

Financial Sustainability of Local Authorities - 6th March 2018

National Audit Office report examines whether departments with responsibility for local services understand the impact of funding reductions on the financial and service sustainability of local authorities. The report concludes that financial pressures have increased markedly since 2014 as services face reducing funding, new demand and cost pressures and no reduction in their statutory obligations. The current pattern of growing overspends on services and dwindling reserves is not sustainable over the medium term. The report recommends that the Department must set out a long-term financial plan for the sector at the earliest opportunity. Departments need to build a consensus about the role and significance of local government as a whole in the context of the current funding climate, rather than engaging with authorities solely to deliver their individual service responsibilities.
